Brunmeier Dairy Farm in Newton, Wisconsin has been in the Brunmeier family for three generations and is currently managed by brothers, Jeff and Mike Brunmeier and their sister Kim Pahl.

The Brunmeier family did their research on how to store their feed and decided to go with tower silos. "We definitely believe in tower silos especially because they are easier to use when filling and feeding," said Mike.

"There are financial benefits with tower silos," Mike added. "It is the least labor intense, it is easy to feed and we have found the feed time dropped compared to the feeding time from a bag."
